FROM THE SCHOOL LEADERSHIP TEAM

Dear Parents, Carers and Community Members,

On Monday, I attended a Leadership Forum with Principals and Senior Leaders from our Catholic schools within the Archdiocese of Brisbane. We listened to Mr Francis Sullivan who delivered an incredibly powerful and moving speech. The message in his speech was clear and strong, so after reading, if you wish to discuss further, please take the time to talk to me.

Francis is the Chief Executive Officer from the Truth, Justice and Healing Council. The Truth, Justice and Healing Council has been established by the Catholic Church to help the Church fully embrace the Australian Government’s Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse. The Council will help the Church deal with the tragic legacy of child sexual abuse and help victims and survivors to be heard and supported. The Royal Commission is an opportunity for the Church to explain the way it has treated victims and survivors, to acknowledge past wrongs and failings and to find ways in which to work towards justice and healing for all. Importantly, it is an opportunity for victims and survivors of sexual abuse to come forward and be heard in an environment of support and safety.

The Truth, Justice and Healing Council will represent dioceses, archdioceses and religious congregations from across Australia before the Royal Commission starting shortly. The Council will do everything possible to ensure the Church co-operates with the Commission in a spirit of openness, transparency and compassion. We will instruct our lawyers to treat victims with respect and consideration, to be open and transparent with the Commission and not hide behind legal technicalities. The Council will also work on developing new policies and procedures to protect young people in the future and to ensure the Church responds to any future complaints appropriately and justly, putting the needs of victims and survivors first. Since the mid-1990s the Church has made many improvements and put in place new procedures designed to prevent sexual abuse and to ensure past victims and survivors are treated with dignity and respect.

More information on the Truth, Justice and Healing Council can be found at http://www.tjhcouncil.org.au/. His final message was to encourage community members to contact the Council if any support is required.

Funding - Facts and Fiction
Reports appeared in the media recently that Catholic schools ‘signed up’ to the Better Schools funding reforms. Below I provide some information that the Queensland Catholic Education Commission released following the conclusion of negotiations between the National Catholic Education Commission and the Australian Government with regards to future funding for Catholic schools.

The Queensland Catholic Education Commission, along with all other state and territory Catholic Education Commissions, last week acknowledged that negotiations have concluded with the Australian Government in relation to future funding.

arrangements for Catholic schools. The ‘Better Schools Plan’ funding arrangements have been established by the passage through Parliament at the end of June 2013 of the Australian Education Act 2013. The Act provides for Australian Government funding for Catholic schools to be delivered under the ‘Better Schools Plan’. The National Catholic Education Commission has been in discussion with the Australian Government as to how the funding, administrative and regulatory aspects of the ‘Better Schools Plan’ will apply to Catholic schools.

Mike Byrne, Executive Director QCEC, says that “the ‘Better Schools Plan’ is expected to deliver modest funding increases to Catholic schools in its initial stages.”

“Under the ‘Better Schools Plan’, Catholic Education will continue to direct funds to areas of identified need to contribute to positive educational outcomes for young people in Queensland.” On 27 July 2013 Mike Byrne, Executive Director, Queensland Catholic Education Commission, was interviewed on ABC Radio. This interview provides a clear explanation of the outcomes of the negotiations with the Australian Government. Click here to listen to an ABC Radio interview with Mike Byrne. We are grateful to the National Catholic Education Commission for their advocacy for Catholic schools during these negotiations and in the lead up to the federal election.

This Thursday 8 is the Feast of St Mary of the Cross MacKillop our first Australian Saint. For all Australians, whether Catholic or not, Mary MacKillop is seen as a woman of heroic virtue, great courage and enormous strength.

This week we welcome back Ms Amy Heshusius to Yr. 4 and thank Mrs Therese Evans for her fine contribution to this class. Therese will continue supporting the learning and teaching at St Rita’s by replacing Mrs Jo Rossi in the library as Jo takes some well-deserved long service leave, and then replacing Mrs Marie Shepherd in Yr. 6 as Marie also takes some leave in Term 4. I would also like to acknowledge Mrs Jessica Hill for her fine leadership as Acting Assistant Principal as we welcome back Ms McKenny to St Rita’s next week.

Just a reminder that Monday 12 August is a Show Public Holiday for the Redlands.

Enjoy the warmth of the week ahead
Kevin

School Song
This week at our whole school assembly Mr Tyrrell, with the help of the senior choir lead the school in singing and learning our new school song. Mr Tyrrell will continue to lead the school during our Monday morning assemblies. The school song can be found on our new website under the School Profile tab. We encourage the community to listen to the song and discuss the lyrics with your children. These are the words that our students contributed as they felt they best described the culture of St Rita’s. In the chorus there are the words “With pride we sing out loud.’ By involving the students in the development and producing of the song they have helped to create something which they can sing with excitement and pride that they belong to St Rita’s community. Later in the term the official launch and recording of the song will occur with the support of BCE personnel.

St Mary of the Cross
On Thursday 8 August is the Feast day for St Mary of the Cross, Australia’s first Saint Mary Mackillop. This is an extremely special day in the Australian Church. Not only is St Mary Australia’s first Saint but her impact and dedication towards Catholic Education is paramount to where we are today. Throughout Mary’s life it is clearly evident her desire to do God’s will and help those who were in great need. Mary was part of the development of the first order of Nuns in Australia, the Sisters of St Joseph. She then moved on to help build the first Catholic School in South Australia and within 4 years of this she had established over 40 more schools and had 120 more women join her in her mission. These are just a few small snippets of this great woman’s life, for more information on St Mary of the Cross please visit http://www.marymackillop.org.au/index.cfm. At St Rita’s we will be celebrating this feast day at a class level by praying to St Mary to guide us in taking up her call and to, ‘never see a need without doing something about it’ (Mary Mackillop, 1871).

Father’s Day Liturgy
A reminder to keep Friday 30 August free. There will be a liturgy and a BBQ breakfast before school at 7:45 to celebrate Father’s Day. The Mini Vinnies team and School Parent Network will continue to provide more details closer to the date.

Jessica Hill
Two weeks ago, I came across this article by Kylie Lang, a wonderful writer for the Sunday Mail. Hope it resonates in some way with you, as it did with me. Good read.

“We will turn out a nation of spoilt softies if we continue to overindulge our children. Tomorrow's Australian adults are heading for lives of unbridled hedonism unless parents, carers and educators start getting tougher in the formative years. And it is in everyone's interests that we act. What self-obsessed, brand-name-addicted crop of decision makers is going to care about the elderly, about social justice, about the welfare others less fortunate?

I read in The Courier-Mail yesterday that parents are spoiling their kids, with the cost of raising children now a $110 billion-a-year industry. Mums and dads, reportedly pressured to appear "good" parents, are indulging their little darlings with new clothes, gadgets, toys and otherwise useless paraphernalia.

Demographer Bernard Salt reckons children are, in some cases, being seen as "lifestyle accessories" and used to establish their parents' place in society, much like the purchase of a shiny new car. It's no longer simply "I can't believe she bought a Jeep"; now it's also I can't believe she bought her baby an $80 pair of Nike runners. Salt says Australia could be taking its cues from China where smaller numbers of children per household has led to "Little Emperor" syndrome and extreme indulgence of the young.

Over-indulgence, of course, is not limited to monetary matters. Besides giving too much, it involves over-nurturing and providing too little structure.

All three forms of excess have been shown to have negative effects on children that last into adulthood. In one 2010 study Relationships Between Childhood Overindulgence and Adult Attitudes and Behaviour, researchers found the overindulged were more likely to hold materialistic values about success and happiness. The study interviewed 466 participants aged 16-83 (mean age 30) world-wide.

Two types of overindulgence - "over-nurture" and "too much" - appeared to be the biggest contributors to materialistic values. Overindulged children were also unable to delay gratification in adulthood. No surprises that this "I want it now" attitude correlates with an ungratefulness for things and, more importantly, for people. Conversely, researchers found that those who were not overindulged as kids were more thankful.

Interestingly, the type of overindulgence that led to being ungrateful was "soft structure". In other words, fail to set and enforce limits, and kids will not learn to respect themselves, others or the possessions afforded them.

It's not rocket science, so it seems ridiculous that more parents are not wising up and saying "no" more often.

Children who are not taught right from wrong have less chance of growing up with a firm set of values, principles and an understanding of what is socially acceptable and what is not. Similarly, giving kids more than they need - I know of a 10 year old boy with 28 pairs of shoes - is not helpful.

Human nature is such that the more we have, the more we want. Manufacturers and marketers know this, and are expert at trying to make us believe that what we have isn't enough (when it usually is). This subsequently leads to what sociologists call "subjective unhappiness".

We don't base our feelings of happiness on who we are but on the things we perceive we need to feel happy. Look at any number of commercials for cars, coffee or clothing and tell me they aren't tapping into our insecurities around being popular or finding contentment.

To my mind, the best things we can give our kids are free. A safe and loving environment is one where boundaries are set and respected, where lines of communication are kept open and where children know clearly what is expected of them. Saying "no" is a vital tool for parents, even when it seems that saying "yes" is easier. The way we raise our children matters, if for no other reason than they'll be the ones determining how older Australians are treated in the coming years.”

Have a great week.
Shane
School Wide Positive Behaviour Support (SWPBS)

Team

From time to time, we hear from the children and at times parents, the perception that ‘nothing happens’ in response to inappropriate behaviours. As a teaching community and SWPBS team, can we assure you that all matters are responded to as outlined in our Student Behaviour Support Plan. At times, it can take time, to work through these processes for the outcome of getting to the best truth before we respond. We always aim to do this respecting the rights and dignity of those involved. Recently a child said to a team member that ‘nothing happened’ when another child displayed inappropriate behaviour. When we asked this student ‘how do you know’ the response was ‘I don’t really’. Sometimes we tell ourselves a story based on our perceptions and it may not be the case – and it wasn’t in this case. Please, if you hear your child saying ‘nothing happens’, can you ask them to go and find out more of the story. We will always share what we can to help them understand, and please assure them we always respond to inappropriate behaviours.

Student Support Team

At St Rita’s we value rich and engaging learning experiences. We aim to increase student motivation by providing challenging opportunities in accordance with the student’s strengths and capabilities.
